

Responding to COVID-19: BRITACOM PERSPECTIVE, 2 June 2020

Script of speech

Mr. Enkhjavkhlan Tseyen, Director General of Tax Administration and International Taxation Department, The General Department of Taxation, Mongolia

Honourable chairman Minister Wang Jun and the BRITACOM colleagues from around the world,

Good evening!

It has been a year since we have established the BRITACOM in the beautiful city of Wuzhen and a lot has passed in this interesting and challenging time.

I do hope you and your family, staff and friends are all well.

Today, I am grateful that we have learnt many examples of how to respond to COVID-19 from both fiscal and tax policy side and preparations of collection and administration measures to respond to the pandemic.

We are happy to hear that the official BRITACOM website is launched today.

The Mongolian Tax Administration joined the BRITACOM with a desire to learn from developments and successes of the other tax administrations.

Currently, our staff actively participate in the online trainings organised by the OECD.

We are very confident that the BRITACOM website would develop an interactive online training and knowledge exchange platform for its member tax administrations.

We are very optimistic that the BRITACOM would focus more towards tackling the challenges arising from fast digitalisation of businesses as a counter measure to the pandemic in its future work.

And I hope that we would share our experience and knowledge as we do today until the pandemic subsides.

Lastly, I have to note that this online meeting is very fruitful and fulfils its purpose.

Thank you!

I am very looking forward to meet our BRITACOM friends in Nur-Sultan city of Kazakhstan, in 2021.
